Excerpt: .expressions, in the sums way that we adopt French words and phrases. The chorus-leadcr)--V er. 161. Chorrgo. As to the chorngus or master of the wardrobe, see the Curculio, Act IV., Sc. I (nnd the Note), where he is introduced as one of the Dramatis Personae. See the Notes also to the Trinummns, I. 858. The.Edile.v)--Ver. 162. It has been observed in previous Notes that the Ediles had the management of the representations on the stage; and probably they had a contract with the choregi that they should always have dresses and properties in readiness for the use of the actors. Tox. Be off and attend to this. (Ea, -it Suumo.) In the meantime, I want to send a boy to my mistress; that she may be of good courage, and that I shall manage it to-day. I m talking too much at length. (Goes into the house.) Soru. It were enough to tell an Ilt, thoughtless, silly girl the some thing so n1: giy times ove; i eally, in fact, YH6 imagineTITat I r n qiIRe looked u on by ou as a blockhead and a country booby. Althoug I do nk wine, still I m not in the habit of swallowing down your commands together with it. I really had fancied that both myself and my ways had now been sufficiently proved by you; for, as for me, I ve attended you now these five ears; whereas, in that time, a cuckoo...
