PURE ADVERBS. 264. This class includes a very large number of adverbs. Adverbs of this class may be used in simple sentences as well as in complex and compound sentences, since in their use they simply limit other words. Many of the pure adverbs admit of comparison. The kinds, methods, and degrees, are the same as those of the adjective (169). The principles governing the use of the comparative and the superlative forms of the adjective, govern the use of the comparative and the superlative forms of the adverb. (See 170, 171). COMPARISON OF ADVERBS. 265. Adverbs ending in ly are generally compared by prefixing more or less, and most or least; as, Positive. Comparative. Superlative. rapidly more rapidly most rapidly faithfully more faithfully most faithfully keenly less keenly least keenly 266. Some adverbs add the suffixes...
