Excerpt: . . . quite new I hear God came down from Heaven to reveal it, and if so it must be truth, for the Almighty cannot err. Christianity, Aleppo, is only another ringing of the changes. A fresh working up of the mystery of Horus, the child-god of the Egyptians, representing Osiris, who descended from high heaven, became incarnate in the flesh, opposed the spirit of evil, otherwise the devil, worked miracles, laid down his life for mankind, was buried, rose again, and, ascending back to heaven, became the Opener of good and Judge of the living and the dead. I thought, said Aleppo, that Christianity was something quite new and that God Himself had, at last, visited the creatures He had made and revealed the object and purposes of life. Nay, Aleppo, this is not so, for those who have studied the Christian history know well that all the materials for making up the theory existed long before. The Parsees, in their divine Zoroaster, who came from heaven, had temptations, miracles, interviews with Deity, and purity of thought, and nobility of life and character. Mithra, too, was the Light of the World, and gave to all who believed the doctrine, eternal life and heaven, and the followers of this god weretaught-to look upon themselves as plants of heaven, not of earth. So Guitama, the Brahma of the Hindoos, was ggod incarnate in the flesh, and had temptations, miracles, and interviews with the Almighty God. So, I...
